

Editorial

On behalf of the Editorial Team, it is a matter of great privilege that we are writing this message to present the fourth issue of the 'Journal of Food and Agriculture Research' (J-FAR). Origin of the 'Journal of Food and Agriculture Research' comes from a thought process and after debating and discussing various issues we followed essential steps to bring a quality scientific publication. We are trusting on the teamwork of all our associate editors, editorial board members, reviewers and contributors to make it a state-of-the-art and significant publication. The Journal of Food and Agriculture Research is an academic journal providing an opportunity to the researchers, scientist and students to publish the innovative and latest research developments in the field of food science and agricultural research.

The editorial board has decided that the journal should be published bi-annually as an open-access online journal for providing unrestricted access to the significant and valued publications to the students and researchers around the world. The journal will publish peer-reviewed research papers, reviews and short communications in the basic and emerging areas of food science and agricultural research and will give special importance to the fundamental and applied research findings having novelties in the respective fields. The journal covers research and development in the field of food science and technology, food quality and safety, food engineering and packaging, agriculture technologies, agriculture production, agriculture management etc.

This fourth issue beholden to many people. First of all, thanks are due to our associate editors, editorial board, reviewers and contributors, who have generously given their time and expertise to bring out the fourth issue of Journal of Food and Agriculture Research. Their competence and consideration to all the aspects has made the publication of fourth issue into a success. The fourth issue consists of five papers on diverse aspects of food and agricultural research. We anticipate you will appreciate reading our fourth issue, and the articles might be useful to your ongoing and/or future research programs and will also provide new directions in food and agricultural research.
